

Law and Method

Interdisciplinary Research into Law
Edited by Bart van Klink and Sanne Taekema

This book gives an overview of the most relevant disciplines for interdisciplinary research on law. What are the characteristics of these disciplines one really needs to understand in order to do research that combines law with them? The book consists of three parts. The first part addresses general methodological questions about legal scholarship and interdisciplinary research. The second part consists of chapters exploring the relationship between law and other disciplines. The disciplines are classified in broadly three categories: empirical social science, humanities, and language-oriented disciplines. The third part contains examples of interdisciplinary research in practice: how is it done, what kinds of problems arise when doing such research, and what insights into law does it provide?

Contents:

Part I: General Issues

Sanne Taekema and Bart van Klink: On the Border. Limits and Possibilities of Interdisciplinary Research – Sanne Taekema: Relative Autonomy: A Characterisation of the Discipline of Law

Part II: Interdisciplinary Research in Theory

Koen Van Aeken: Law, Sociology and Anthropology: A Liaison Beginning Endlessly – Alessio Paccas and Louis Visscher: Law and Economics: Methodology – Barbara Spellman: Law and Psychology: Problems and Promise – Randall Lesaffer: Law and History: Law between Past and Present – Oliver W. Lembcke: Law and Political Theory: The Other Side of the Story – Wibren van der Burg: Law and Ethics: The Twin Disciplines – David Janssens: Law and Philosophy: The Drama of Question and Answer – Jeanne Gaakeer: Law, Language and Literature: Their

Interrelations in Law and Literature – Willem Witteveen: Law and Rhetoric: A Misunderstood Relation – Harm Kloosterhuis and Eveline Feteris: Law and Argumentation Theory: Theoretical Approaches to Legal Justification

Part III: Interdisciplinary Research in Practice

Nienke Doornbos: Dilemmas and Strategies in Research on Migrants: A Case Study in Law and Sociology – Michiel Köhne: Indigenous Land Governance in Bolivia: A Case Study in Law and Anthropology – Hila Nevo: Interdisciplinary Research in the Field of Competition Law: A Case Study in Law and Economics – Nicolle Zeegers: The Mobilizing Force of Legal Rules: A Case Study in Law and Political Science – Eric Tjong Tjin Tai: Duties of Care and Ethics of Care: A Case Study in Law and Ethics – Julen Etxabe: What do the Poets Know about Democracy? A Case Study in Law and Literature – Francesca Dominello: Framing Law at a Different Angle: A Case Study in Law and Film – Henrike Jansen: Analyzing Arguments in Legal Discourse: A Case Study in Argumentation Theory

Recht und Methode.

Interdisziplinäre Studien zum Recht. Rechtswissenschaftler, Doktoranden und Studierende in höheren Semestern finden in diesem Buch einen Überblick über die wichtigsten Disziplinen, die für interdisziplinäre Untersuchungen zur Rechtswissenschaft relevant sind.

Bart van Klink:

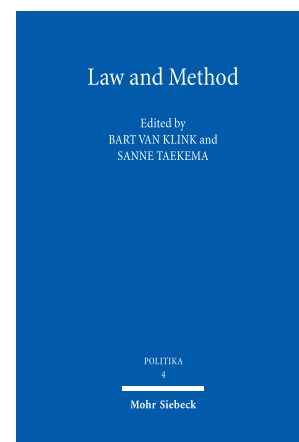

Born 1965; Professor of Legal Methodology, VU University Amsterdam, the Netherlands.

Sanne Taekema:

Born 1970; Professor of Jurisprudence, Erasmus School of Law, Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands.

Main audience:

Students and scholars of law; corresponding institutes and libraries.

Law and Method
Interdisciplinary Research into Law
Edited by Bart van Klink and Sanne Taekema

2011. IX, 388 Seiten (POLITIKA 4).
ISBN 978-3-16-150676-5
fadengeheftete Broschur € 59,- erscheint im Februar

What are the characteristics of the disciplines relevant for interdisciplinary research into law and how should such research be carried out? Providing an overview of these disciplines, the authors of this book offer an accessible introduction to the main fields of interdisciplinary research for legal scholars and students.