

Polemos, 1/2020

Table of contents

Focus: "Digital Ontology and Epistemology: between Law, Literature and the Visual Arts".

Daniela Carpi, Introduction.

Svend Larsen, "'The Earth is flat!' The Literary Complexity of Truth, Lies and Fake Knowledge".

Antoinette Maget Dominicé, Dario Henri Haux and Fabienne Sarah Graf, "Saving Content in Digital Surroundings: A Safe Solution?"

Scott Fraley, "Digital Justice: Shining Future or Illusory Chimera?"

Jeanne Gaakeer, "'Select before you collect': uses and abuses of profiling and data mining in law and literature".

Annalisa Volpone, "Supposing the Law: Nomos and Categorical Imperatives in Never Let Me Go."

Paola Carbone and Giuseppe Rossi, "Digital voodoo: Who Does What?"

Cristina Costantini, "Forensic Iconicity. The Experimental Law's Whatness in Digital Culture."

Research:

Yvonne Bezrucka, "Digital Media, Fears, and their Ontological Demagogic Power: Utopia, Homeland, Occupied."

Doris Pichler, "Law as Literature: The Interdisciplinary Endeavour of OUDROPO, and Their Interdisciplinary Play with Text."

Peter D. Usher, "The Merchant of Venice and the Paschal Moon."

Reviews:

Sidia Fiorato, Daniela Carpi (ed.), Monsters and Monstrosity: From the Canon to the Anti-Canon. Literary and Juridical Subversions (2019).

Roberta Zanoni, Jonas Ross Kjærgård, Reimagining, Society in Eighteenth-Century French Literature. Happiness and Human Rights (2018).